

The RE-IMAGINE Project of Los Angeles

Orientation #3—Your Role and Keys to Success on Your Journey

Welcome

Goals

- Learn about what congregations do to make the project more successful
- Learn about your specific role in the project and get a chance to work with the people in other congregations who have the same role as you.

Connection

The last time we were together, we talked about the importance of continually communicating about The RE-IMAGINE Project, and we practiced what that communication might sound like. In the past few weeks, what words or phrases have you found most helpful when describing The RE-IMAGINE Project to potential members of your Task Force and to other congregants? What remains a challenge to describe or convey?

Core Discussion One: Keys to Success in The RE-IMAGINE Project

- Defining Success
- How to Make Transformative and Lasting Change

Taking Text Study on the Journey—Why and How?

A Prayer in Your Pocket

It is the custom when leaving on a journey to say T'fillat Ha-Derech (the Traveler's Prayer). Taking a journey is a tremendous challenge. Along the way there can be wonderful rewards but also potential dangers. Jewish tradition acknowledges the challenges a journey poses and responds with T'fillat Ha-Derech. In many ways, setting out to RE-IMAGINE religious education resembles embarking on a journey. This prayer is a resource for your journey. How will you take it with you?

Core Discussion Two: Getting the Most from Your Role on the Leadership Team

Getting to know your role

Return to your Leadership Team Table

What did you learn about your role that you would like to share with other Leadership Team members?

Reflection

- How has your thinking about this project changed since July when orientations began? How has it remained the same?
- What one or two words describe how you are feeling about finally having your first Task Force meeting?

Next Steps

- Continue to invite Task Force members
- Complete your calendar for the project including Leadership Team meetings, Task Force meetings, and large group meetings. Share your calendar with your consultant
- Continue to communicate to all stakeholders about The RE-IMAGINE Project
- Schedule a time to follow-up with your consultant prior to the first Task Force meeting
- Schedule regular phone time with your consultant – monthly for Task Force Chair, rabbi and educator
